

AMONG THE MORMONS

A Survey of Current Literature

EDITED BY STEPHEN W. STATHIS

WOODROW WILSON, WHILE STILL A PROFESSOR at Princeton, told his students in 1900 that he "would never read a book if it were possible for me to talk half an hour with the man who wrote it." Unfortunately, most of us seldom have the opportunity to converse with authors as President Wilson recommends. As a result we are left to browsing among our favorite bookstores and reviewing the thousands of reviews which burst forth anew each month. Further complicating the whole process is the sheer volume of books being published today. Those readers interested in Mormon topics likewise continue to experience prodigious growth in the selections which might conceivably appeal to them. Even the most casual reading of the some three hundred books which have been selected for inclusion in the bibliography (encompassing the period from late 1974 to early 1978) will find several studies which will be of more than passing interest. Perhaps even more important, however, is the realization that "church books" have become a big business. Equally significant is the vast number of older books on Mormonism now being reprinted. A separate compilation of the reprints which are currently available has been prepared by Gregory A. Prince. In the end, apart from some few works which genuinely enrich our understanding, examination of most of the studies here listed call to mind the words of Francis Bacon: "Some books are to be tasted, others to be swallowed, and some few to be chewed and digested."
