

Widow's Weeds

Mary Lythgoe Bradford

Black
is the absence of color to which the eye adjusts.
Black magnifies the face of the beloved.

Lavender
is the polite word for purple, the color of bruises
the color of intoxication, and of healing.

Grey
is the color of first light and last light.
The next step after grey
is white.