

CONTRIBUTORS

SCOTT BURTON {burtonrs@ldsces.org} has been a coordinator for seminary and institutes for twenty years and is currently director of the LDS Institute of Religion at Ohio State University. He served in the Massachusetts Boston Mission (1974–76). He and his wife, Estelle, have four children.

KIRSTEN M. CHRISTENSEN {kmc@plu.edu} is associate professor of German at Pacific Lutheran University, Tacoma, Washington, where she teaches German language, literature, film, and culture. Her research focuses on the writings of late-medieval and early sixteenth-century women mystics in the Low Countries and Germany. She currently serves in the Primary presidency of the Stadium Ward.

M. DAVIS. Biographical information withheld by request. “Jake” is a pseudonym.

LISA TORCASSO DOWNING {downingt@aol.com} resides in Texas with her family and is an adjunct professor of English at Collin County Community College. She is the recipient of the Association for Mormon Letters 2007 Award for Short Fiction. Her work has appeared in Dialogue, Sunstone, and Irreantum.

NATHAN B. OMAN {nboman@wm.edu} is a professor at William & Mary Law School in Williamsburg, Virginia. His articles on Mormon studies have appeared in Dialogue: A Journal of Mormon Thought, Element: The Journal of the Society for Mormon Philosophy and Theology, BYU Law Review, and FARMS Review. He lives in Virginia with his wife, Heather, their two children, and a psychotic (but friendly) dog. He serves as ward clerk in the Jamestown Ward, Newport News Virginia Stake.

STEVEN L. PECK {steven_peck@byu.edu} is associate professor of biology at Brigham Young University where he teaches the history and philosophy of biology. He lives in Pleasant Grove, Utah, with his wife, Lori. They have five children and two grandchildren. He writes for the Mormon blog By Common Consent and blogs on faith/science issues at the Mormon Organon.

LEVI S. PETERSON {althlevi@msn.com} is a retired professor of English at Weber State University, presently living in Issaquah, Washington, with his wife, Althea. He is a former editor of Dialogue and the author of two collections of short stories, two novels, a biography, and an autobiography.

MACK C. STIRLING is Director of Cardiothoracic Surgery at Munson Medical Center in Traverse City, Michigan. He served in the Oslo Norway

Mission (1971–73). He and his wife, Dixie, are the parents of four daughters.

HOLLY WELKER {holly.welker@gmail.com}, a writer and editor, is the descendant of Mormon pioneers who arrived in the Great Salt Lake Valley with Brigham Young; she used to say that she was “glad my ancestors had the sense to leave Utah not long after they got there.” But having recently relocated to Salt Lake City, she is surprised and gratified at how much she loves the place. Her poetry, fiction, and nonfiction have appeared or are forthcoming in such publications as Alaska Quarterly Review, Best American Essays, Black Warrior Review, The Cream City Review, Gulf Coast, Hayden’s Ferry Review, Image, The Iowa Review, Iron Horse Literary Review, Other Voices, PMS, Poetry International, The Spoon River Poetry Review, Sunstone, and TriQuarterly. Her essay, “All I Wanted Was a Hug,” appeared November 1, 2009, in the New York Times, ST6, <http://www.nytimes.com/2009/11/01/fashion/01love.html>.

WESLEY J. WILDMAN {wwildman@bu.edu} teaches philosophy, theology, and ethics in Boston University’s School of Theology. He is co-author of Lost in the Middle? and Found in the Middle!, two books that aim to help Christian moderates find their voice and become articulate in their faith. He is ordained in the Uniting Church of Australia and has served churches in Sydney and California.