CONTRIBUTORS

CHRISTIAN N. K. ANDERSON {senka@ucsd.edu} is a graduate of Stanford University in biology, an IGERT Fellow at the Scripps Institution of Oceanography at the University of California, San Diego, where he earned his Ph.D. in marine biology. He thanks Myriam M. Capella and Hugo Olaiz for Spanish assistance and Blair Hodges for assistance with some C. S. Lewis citations.

MARC ALAIN BOHN {marcbohn@gmail.com} is an attorney in the Washington, D.C., area, where he lives with his wife, Melissa, and two sons. Marc served in the Washington D.C. South Mission, then earned a political science degree from Brigham Young University and a law degree from the George Washington University. In his limited free time, Marc enjoys spending time with his family and blogging at the Mormon-themed Times & Seasons.

KENNETH L. CANNON II {kcannon@djplaw.com} is a lawyer in private practice in Salt Lake City. During law school, he also completed a master’s degree in American history and published a number of historical articles on post-Manifesto polygamy, vigilantism against seducers, polygamy under English common law, and baseball in early Salt Lake City. Ken has recently published articles in Journal of Mormon History and Utah Historical Quarterly. He is working on a biography of John Q., Frank J., and Abraham H. Cannon, who are his first cousins twice removed through his grandfather, and also his great-great-uncles, through his grandmother.

ANDREW W. COOK {awcook@sbcglobal.net} is a computational physicist at Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory. He received his undergraduate degree at the University of Utah and his Ph.D. in mechanical engineering from the University of Washington in 1996. He grew up in Bountiful, Utah, and served a Greek-speaking mission in Melbourne, Australia. He and his wife, Ann D. Cook, have six children.

DAVID CHARLES GORE {dgore@d.umn.edu} is assistant professor in the Department of Communication at the University of Minnesota Duluth. He presented an early draft of this paper at the 2009 Mormon Scholars in the Humanities Conference. David and his wife, Kathy Foti Gore, are the parents of five children. ACKNOWLEDGMENTS: I would like to thank the editors of Dialogue and the anonymous reviewers for their many helpful comments and suggestions. I also thank my family, especially my uncle, J. Christopher Larsen, for many wonderful letters over the years that no doubt prompted reflection on the epistolary form.

ANNETTE HAWS {annette_haws@yahoo.com}, a native of Logan, is a graduate from Utah State University and did graduate work at the University of Iowa and the University of Utah. Her novel, Waiting for the Light to Change, won Best of State in 2009, a Whitney Award for Best Fiction, and the Diamond Quill from the League of Utah Writers. She has also published in Sunstone.

BARRY LAGA {blaga@mesastate.edu} is professor of English at Mesa State College in Grand Junction, Colorado, where he teaches American literature, literary theory, and cultural studies.

JAMES C. OLSEN {jamescolsen@gmail.com} and his wife, Erin Fairlight Olsen, are the parents of four children and live near San Diego. After serving in the Missouri St. Louis Mission, he completed an undergraduate degree in philosophy at Brigham Young University and an M.A. in international affairs at George Washington University. He is currently working to complete a Ph.D. in philosophy from Georgetown University.

LIZZIE SKURNICK {lizzie.skurnick@gmail.com} has published poetry in Barrow Street, Daily Intel, and Morning Edition, among others. A recipient of fellowships from Yaddo, Ucross, the VCCA, and many other residencies, she is the author of a poetry collection, Check-In (Pittsburgh, Pa., Caketrain, 2005), and of Shelf Discovery (New York: HarperCollins, 2009), a memoir of teen reading. She lives in Jersey City.

CHRISTOPHER C. SMITH {chriscarrollsmith@gmail.com} is a Ph.D. student in history of Christianity and religions in North America at Claremont Graduate University. He received his M.A. in history of Christianity from Wheaton College, and his B.A. in Biblical studies from Fresno Pacific University.

PHILLIP A. SNYDER {phillip_snyder@byu.edu} is an associate professor in the English Department at Brigham Young University, where he specializes in autobiography, contemporary literature, and western studies. Recent publications include Post-Manifesto Polygamy: The 1899–1904 Correspondence of Helen, Owen, and Avery Woodruff, co-edited with Lu Ann Faylor Snyder (Logan: Utah State University Press, 2009), and a review essay on Douglas Thayer’s The Tree House, BYU Studies 49, no. 1 (2010): 171–79. He also serves on the board of the Association for Mormon Letters.

ERIN ANN THOMAS {erinannthomas3@gmail.com} earned an MFA in creative nonfiction from George Mason University and has also published poetry and taught at Northern Virginia Community College. She currently lives in Alexandria, Virginia, and is a technical editor for IBM. Her essay is from Coal in Our Veins: A Personal Journey, a creative nonfiction narrative (forthcoming).

HOLLY WELKER {holly.welker@gmail.com} is a writer, editor and scholar living in Salt Lake City.