CONTRIBUTORS

MICHAEL AUSTIN {maustin66@gmail.com} is Provost, Vice President of Academic Affairs, and Professor of English at Newman University. He lives in Wichita, Kansas, with his wife, Karen, and his children, Porter and Clarissa.

JACOB BAKER {jacob.t.baker@gmail.com} is a doctoral candidate in Philosophy of Religion and Theology at Claremont Graduate University and an instructor at Brigham Young University where he teaches philosophy and philosophy of religion.

BRIAN CHRISTENSEN is an art professor and sculptor whose work ranges from formal outdoor public works to figurative and narrative sculptures. He has a passion for materials and produces work by traditional methods, such as bronze casting and ceramics. But he also incorporates more unconventional methods and materials, such as steel fabrication and synthetic materials, when required to support his art concept. Much of his work walks a line between formalism and narrative approaches. Christensen grew up in San Diego and currently teaches at Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah. He lives with his wife and two children in Springville, Utah where his home studio is located. Christensen has exhibited extensively nationally and abroad and continues to engage his passion for teaching and contemporary art.

R. A. CHRISTMAS {rachristmas@gmail.com} has been a contributor of poetry, fiction, and criticism to Dialogue since the first issue. He has degrees from Stanford, U.C., Berkeley, and USC (Ph.D. 1968, Medieval English Literature). He is the author of seven books of verse, a novel, and a collection of song-writing—all of which can be found at www.lulu.com/spotlight/rachristmas.

ERICA EASTLEY has spent several years living, volunteering, working, traveling, and studying in Central Asia and the Middle East.

JUSTIN EVANS {evjustin@yahoo.com} currently lives in rural Nevada with his wife and three sons, where he teaches various subjects at the local high school. He has published four chapbooks of poetry, as well as the full length collection, Town for the Trees (Foothills, 2012). His poetry is forthcoming in Weber—The Contemporary West, and Ithica-Lit. He is the editor of Hobble Creek Review.
JACK HARRELL {HARRELLJ@byui.edu} teaches English and creative writing at Brigham Young University-Idaho. He is the author of two books of fiction, Vernal Promises, and A Sense of Order and Other Stories.

MICHAEL HICKS {michael_hicks@byu.edu}, composer, performer, scholar, and poet teaches in the School of Music at BYU. He is the author of five books, the latest of which is The Street-Legal Version of Mor-mon’s Book (2012).

BLAIR DEE HODGES {lifeonaplate@gmail.com} is currently completing his master’s thesis on “Intellectual Disability in Mormon Thought and History” at Georgetown University.

CLIFTON HOLT JOLLEY {clifton@adventcommunications.com} lives in Texas with his wife, Avigail, and her three dogs. He receives occasional visits from six children, their families, his bishop, and his rabbi.

MARK KILMER is a teacher and author living in Helsinki, Finland; he blogs at bycommonconsent.com.

JONATHON PENNY {jonathon.penny@gmail.com} practices what he professes in the United Arab Emirates, where he is assistant professor of English literature, a husband, and a father. His scholarship focuses on religion and literature and alternative modernisms. He also writes poetry and fiction under his own name and as amanuensis to Percival P. Pennywhistle, PhD. He is poetry editor at Wilderness Interface Zone, and, together with Jenny Jones Webb, a founding partner of Peas Porridge Press.

JIM RICHARDS {richardsj@byui.edu} completed a Ph.D. in literature and creative writing at the University of Houston in 2003, and has since taught at BYU-Idaho. His poems have appeared in The Prairie Schooner, Poet Lore, the Texas Review, Contemporary American Voices, and in the anthology Fire in the Pasture.

STEPHEN C. TAYSOM {s.taysom@csuohio.edu} is a professor of the history of religion at Cleveland State University. His published works include Shakers, Mormons and Religious Worlds: Conflicting Visions, Contested Boundaries (Bloomington: Indiana University Press, 2010), and an edited collection titled Dimensions of Faith: A Mormon Studies Reader (Salt Lake City: Signature Books, 2011).

WALTER E. A. VAN BEEK {woutervanbeek@hetnet.nl} holds the chair of Anthropology of Religion at Tilburg University and is Senior Researcher at the African Studies Centre, Leiden. He has done extensive fieldwork in West Africa, i.e. among the Dogon of Mali and the Kapsiki of North Cameroon, on which he has published widely. Recently his monograph on Kapiki religion appeared at Oxford UP: The Dancing Dead; Ritual and Religion among the Kapsiki/Higi of North Cameroon and Northeastern Nigeria, 2012. As ‘participant expert’ of Mormonism he has published a series of articles on LDS Mormonism in Europe, specifically in the Netherlands, in Dialogue and the International Journal of Mormon Studies. As a former stake president he is now high priest group leader and the proud grandfather of eleven grandchildren.

ROSALYND KE FRANDSEN WELCH {rosalynde.welch@gmail.com} is an independent scholar of early modern literature and Mormon studies. She holds a Ph.D. from the University of California at San Diego in English literature. She writes a column for Patheos.com on LDS culture and theology. She lives with her husband and four children in St Louis, Missouri.